

KEY POINTS FROM THE AS9100-SERIES TRANSITION STRATEGY

NEVER STOP IMPROVING

NQA is approved to transition organizations to all AS9100:2016 series of standards

Your transition audit will include additional audit time to review new requirements in accordance with IAQG rules.

Organizations can have initial audits to AS9100:2009, AS9110:2012, or AS9120:2009 until 1st June 2017, but those certificates will only be valid until 14th September 2018. After 1st June 2017, organizations can only be audited to the new AS9100:2016 series of standards

After 1st June 2017 no audits (initial, surveillance or recertification) shall be conducted to AS9100:2009 (AS9100C), AS9110:2012 (AS9110B), or AS9120:2009 (AS9120A) though companies may transfer their certification to NQA after that date.

The transition audit will include an audit of those requirements and processes that were planned to be audited but in addition will include an audit of all new requirements of the 2016 standard.

Organizations may upgrade from ISO 9001:2008 or ISO 9001:2015

Organizations shall transition to the new AS9100-series standard in line with their current audit cycle; i.e. at the next planned surveillance or recertification

15.09.2018

The certification body is required to make a positive certification decision prior to 15th September 2018. The positive certification decision includes completion of the transition audit; any corrective action plans submitted, implemented, and verified by an NQA lead auditor; and evaluation of the package by NQA.

Organizations certificated to AS9100:2009, AS9110:2012, or AS9120:2009 cannot transition during a transfer audit
